How to Tie Square Knot Variations: A Macrame Tutorial Claire Percy

The square knot is a very common and versatile knot used in macramé. Square knots can be tied in a sennet (a length of knots tied one after the other) or across many lengths of cords to create solid or netting like patterns.

Each square knot is made up of two steps and needs a minimum of three cords - two knotting cords and at least one to knot those around. This tutorial shows you show to tie a basic square knot using four cords and then how to use the knot in various forms.
